

Our Community

At Copperview Elementary, United Way of Salt Lake partners with Canyons School District, the City of Midvale, and many other community partners to provide academic and social supports to ensure that all students succeed. About 70 percent of the Title I school's 450 students are ethnic minorities, and 41 percent are learning English as a second language. Preschool, afterschool activities, and evening classes for adults are just a few of the enhanced programs that the community school is able to offer with help of its partners.

Our Promise

Copperview's promise is to get the conditions right for academic excellence and successful citizenship. We believe all students and educators are continually learning. We believe a safe and caring environment maximizes learning. We believe highly-qualified educators are catalysts for effective learning. We believe students' cultural and linguistic backgrounds are assets to our school. We believe achieving common goals requires cooperation, communication, and commitment between students, parents, and the school community.

Our Progress

School surveys suggest the Community Schools model is making a difference. A growing share of parents say learning problems are quickly identified at school and students are able to access needed supports. Over two school years, from 2012-13 to 2014-15, absences have dropped 36 percent.
