

Our Community

The Promise Guadalupe partnership serves children and families in the Rose Park, Poplar Grove, and Glendale communities in the Salt Lake area. Our families experience high poverty, with over 90 percent of household incomes falling at or near federal poverty levels. Approximately 300 students are enrolled in the K-6 school. One-hundred-sixty children are served in preschool and in-home programs, and more than 300 adults utilize the school's adult education opportunities.

Our Approach

Guadalupe School is a community of students, staff and volunteers who believe that education is the greatest tool to end the cycle of poverty. We are five unique learning programs within one school, focusing on parent involvement, college preparation, and healthy families. To all who enroll in our programs, we provide a sense of connection, a welcome place to learn and a chance to find better opportunities.

Our Goal

In October 2015, Guadalupe School received a White House Designation as a "Bright Spot in Hispanic Education" from the US Department of Education. In Guadalupe School's in-home program, 82 percent of children visited in the home maintained normal development. Children in the Toddler Beginnings program maintained 76 percent attendance at school. Eighty-four percent of our parents volunteered in their child's classroom. Ninety-two percent of children in this program tested at age level in all developmental domains on the milestones assessment used to check children's progress.
