United Way of Salt Lake, Corporate Partners, and Volunteers Complete Community Service Projects on Day of Caring

Salt Lake City – Across Salt Lake, Summit, Tooele, and Davis counties, corporate partners, including KSL and Northrop Grumman, join United Way of Salt Lake (UWSL) on Day of Caring to complete service projects that support the community's greatest needs. Thirty-four companies have adopted projects, and UWSL has connected 12 schools and 18 nonprofits across the valley with 934 volunteers who will roll up their sleeves to complete annual beautification work and encourage students with STEM, literacy, and college- and career-readiness projects. Learn more at uw.org/day-of-caring.

What: Day of Caring is United Way of Salt Lake's annual event connecting corporate partners with schools and community organizations in need of support. It brings together nearly a thousand volunteers on a day dedicated to service.
