Social Determinants of Health are conditions in the places where people live, learn, work, and play that affect a wide range of health risks and outcomes.

The Promise Partnership is a public-private partnership working to transform the education environment for Utah’s kids. To transform whole communities, we must think beyond individual programs or services and see ourselves as a united group, sharing accountability for community-wide results.

At United Way of Salt Lake, we believe every child deserves the same chance to achieve their dreams, no matter their circumstance. That’s why we work to change the systems that keep people in poverty by addressing the inequities that kids in our communities face. This work focuses on equity in outcomes in education, health, and financial stability.

Our Goals and Roadmap to Success

Children who are kindergarten ready are more likely to have a foundation that supports future learning and health.

Students who are proficient in reading in 3rd grade are more likely to graduate from high school.

Students who are proficient in math in 8th grade are more likely to complete college and be prepared for the workforce.

Students who graduate high school are less likely to experience poverty, receive public assistance, or become involved in the criminal justice system.

Students who are college and career ready are more likely to have better employment and earnings opportunities.

Adults who earn certificates or degrees are more likely to be financially stable, live longer, healthier lives, and be more civically engaged.
